Build Your Happiness by Alina Larson

How to use positive thinking to your advantage when you feel "less than."

*I wish I had her hair, his car, their house. Why isn't my kid as smart, my wardrobe as stylish, my job as glamorous as [insert relative, friend or random stranger]?... We all have these thoughts to some degree. Shira Boss, author of Green with Envy, says it's part of American culture "to want to do better than your parents, better than last year, better than your neighbors."*

A little comparison with others is healthy. It can spur us to make more positive choices for ourselves. (You hit the gym more often after admiring your friend's trim physique, for instance.) But constantly trying to outdo your peers can put you in the hole—financially and spiritually. So how do you keep your comparing in check?

1. Consider your motivation.

Whatever improvements you're making to your life, make sure you're doing it for you, not to impress other people.

2. Be grateful for your gifts.

"The key is to appreciate your own uniqueness and abilities," says psychologist Celeste Gertson, Ph.D. Get your friends' and family's input and make a list of the attributes you've been blessed with. Keep it handy for those times you feel "less than."

3. Set your own standards.

Base them on your skills, interests and ambitions. "You must learn to think independently, and be mindful of what is suitable for you regardless of what the rest of the world says," says organizational psychologist Edwin Locke, Ph.D.

4. Value your own good judgment.

Look back on the smart decisions you've made and things you have accomplished in the past, and remind yourself of your worth. With a little practice, you will find that nobody compares to you!

Happy Birthday

Pastor K. D. Shivers

SATURDAY, JULY 14TH

Make Pastor Shivers' birthday a special one he will always remember. Using a little creativity and innovation, you can celebrate his birthday in a way that he'll really appreciate. Pastor Shivers sacrifices and gives unconditionally to his church, and celebrating his birthday is the perfect opportunity to give back to him what he freely gives on a daily basis. In this month of July, think of some creative ways to celebrate the ministry gift God has placed here at Solomon's Temple.

Facts about Independence Day

July 4, 1776 - The Continental Congress adopts the Declaration of Independence while meeting in Philadelphia at the Pennsylvania Statehouse (now Independence Hall). The Congress declares the American colonies free and independent states. (Note: John Hancock signs on July 4th. The rest sign on August 2, 1776.) Benjamin Franklin, John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, Roger Sherman, and Robert R. Livingston comprised the committee that drafted the Declaration. Jefferson, regarded as the strongest and most eloquent writer, actually wrote most of the document. The committee and Congress as a whole made a total of 86 changes to Jefferson's draft. First two paragraphs of the Declaration of Independence: "When, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bonds which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation. We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. That whenever any form of government becomes destructive to these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to affect their safety and happiness."
